Artifacts: the same job, twice.

BEFORE

"Write a short email to my manager with an overview of our upcoming renewals."

Write a short email to my manager with an overview of our upcoming renewals.

Read the price list >

Gamma Tools (example) is renewal due (contract ends 30 Nov 2026, within 60 days); Alpha Retail and Beta Foods follow on 31 Dec 2026 and 31 Mar 2027.

Subject: Overview of upcoming contract renewals

Hi [Manager's name],

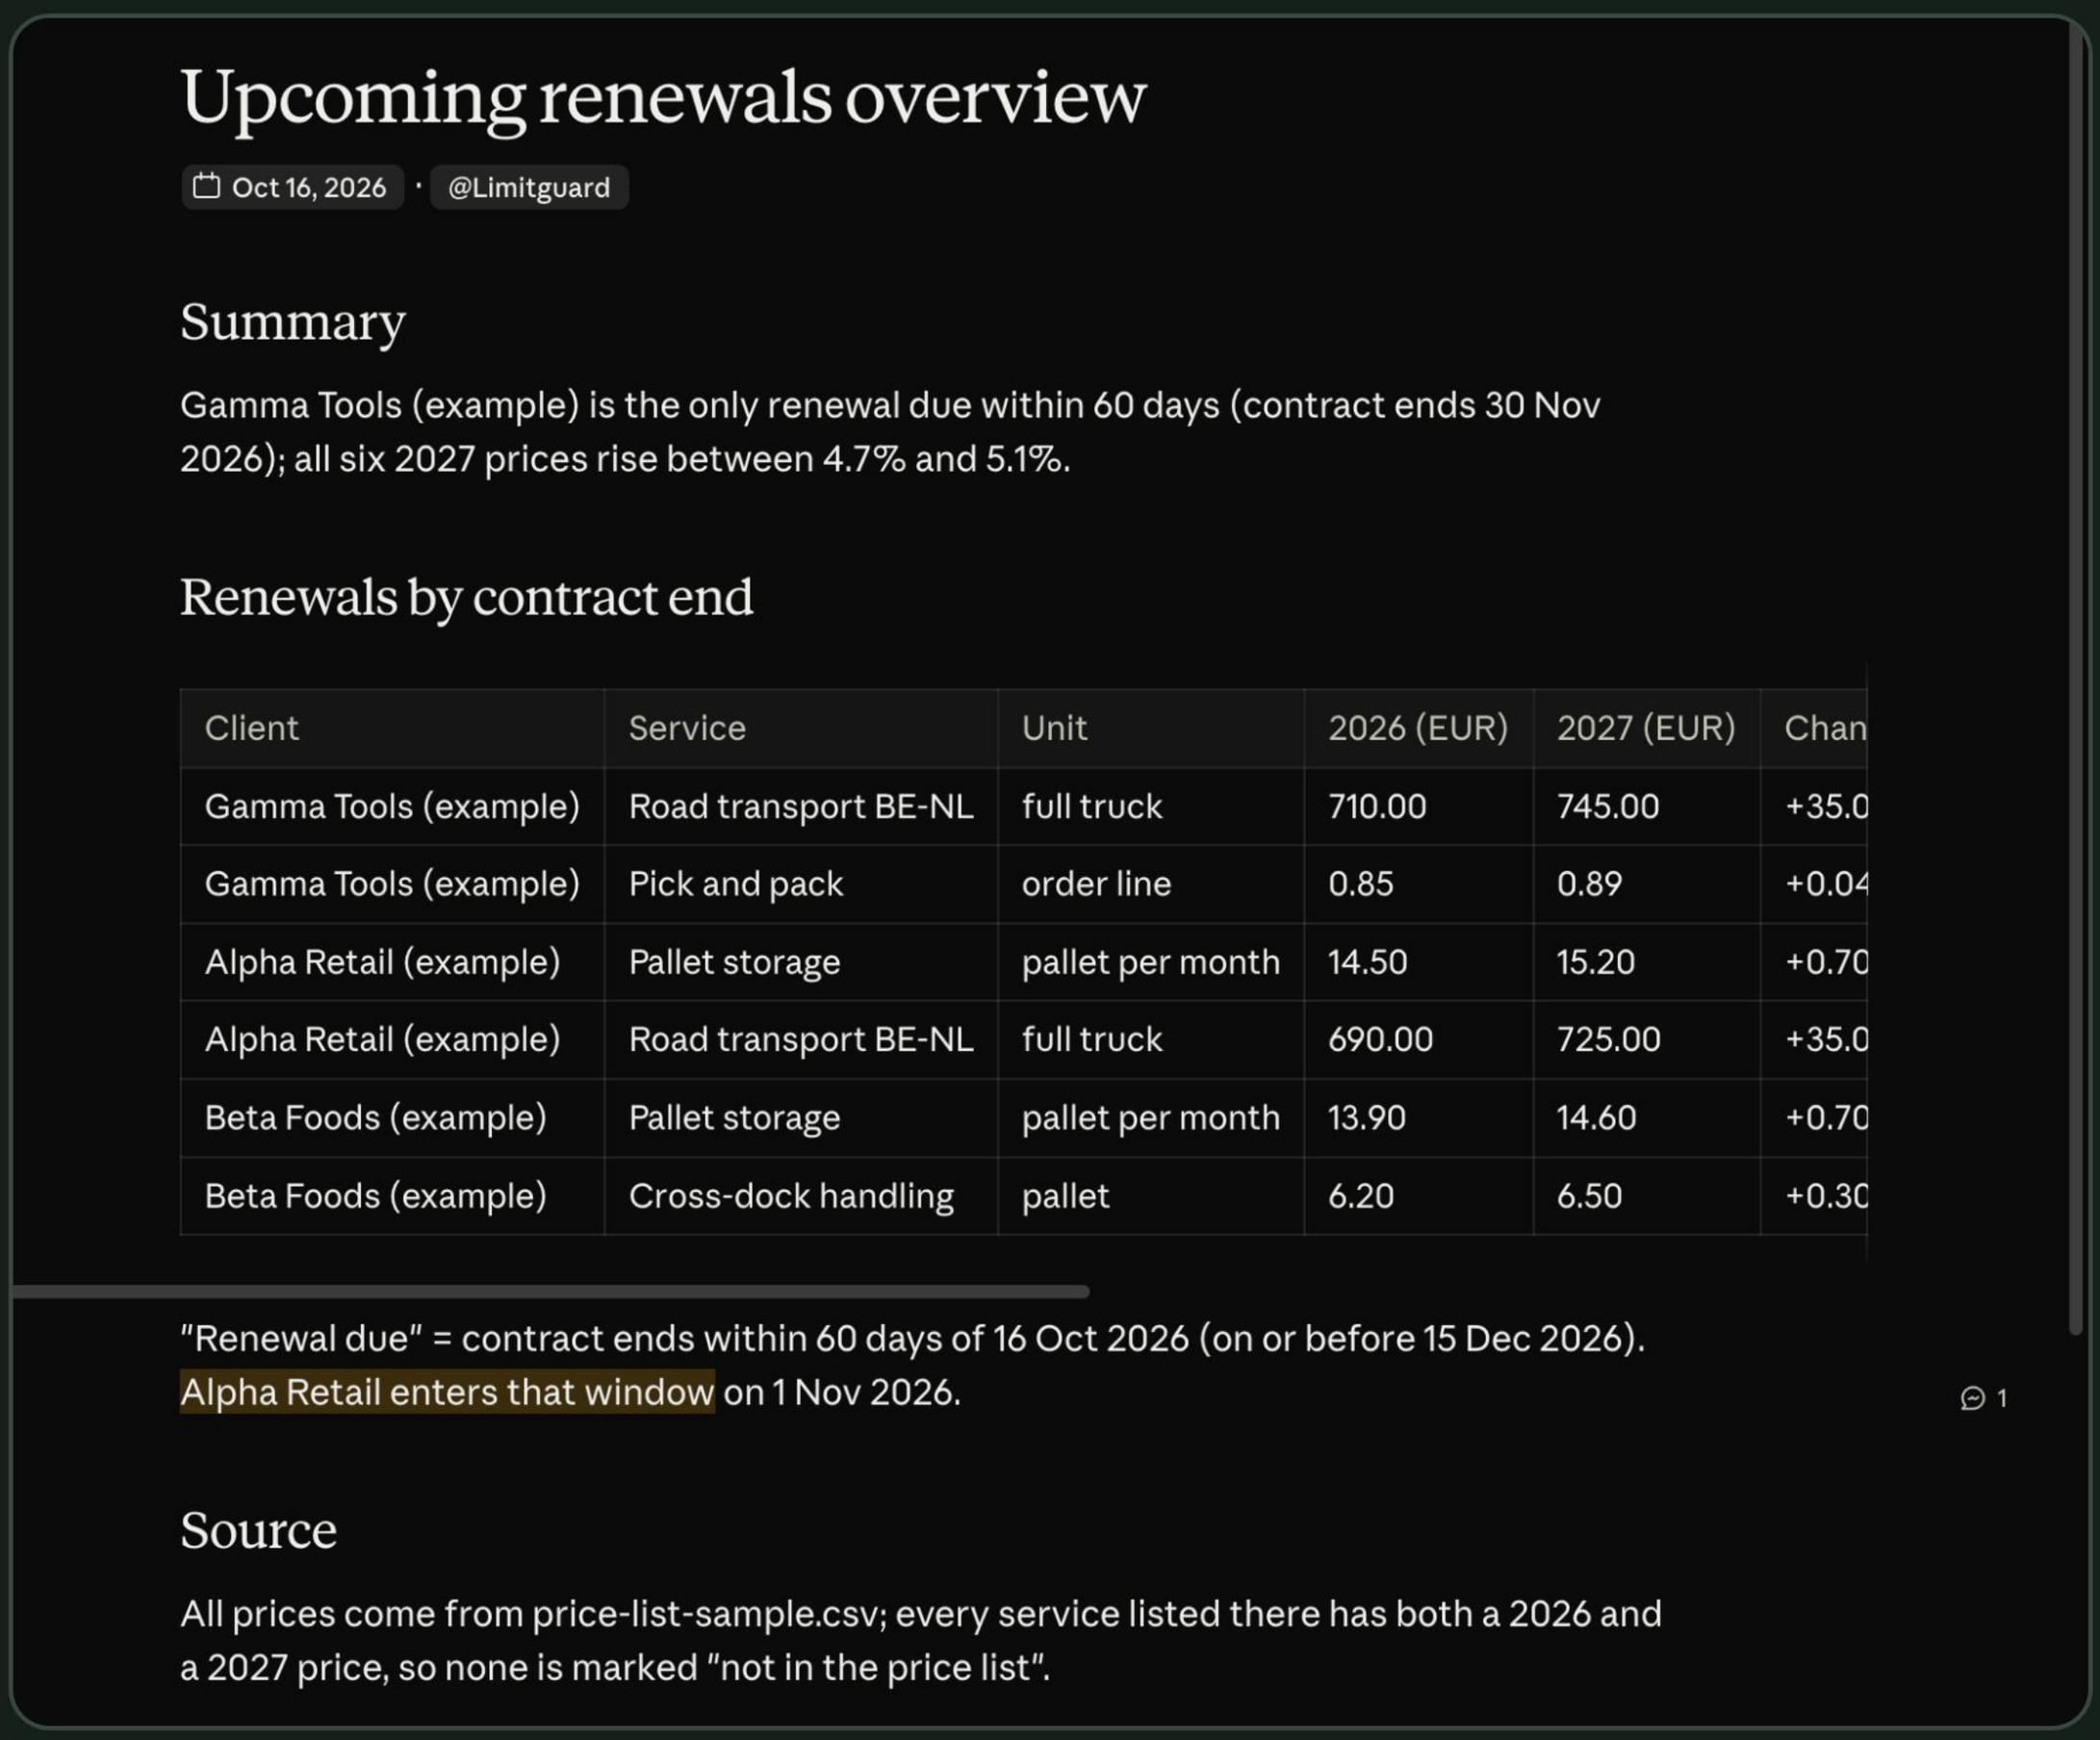

One contract needs action now: Gamma Tools (example) ends on 30 November 2026 and is marked "renewal due". Alpha Retail (example) follows on 31 December 2026, and Beta Foods (example) on 31 March 2027. The 2027 prices from our price list are below.

Client	Service	Unit	2026 (EUR)	2027 (EUR)	Change (EUR)	Change (%)	Contract end	Status
Gamma Tools (example)	Road transport BE-NL	full truck	710.00	745.00	+35.00	+4.9%	30 Nov 2026	Renew due
Gamma Tools (example)	Pick and pack	order line	0.85	0.89	+0.04	+4.7%	30 Nov 2026	Renew due
Alpha	Pallet	pallet	14.50	15.20	+0.70	+4.8%	31 Dec

A good email, and a table to paste. Your manager reads a copy that ages.

AFTER

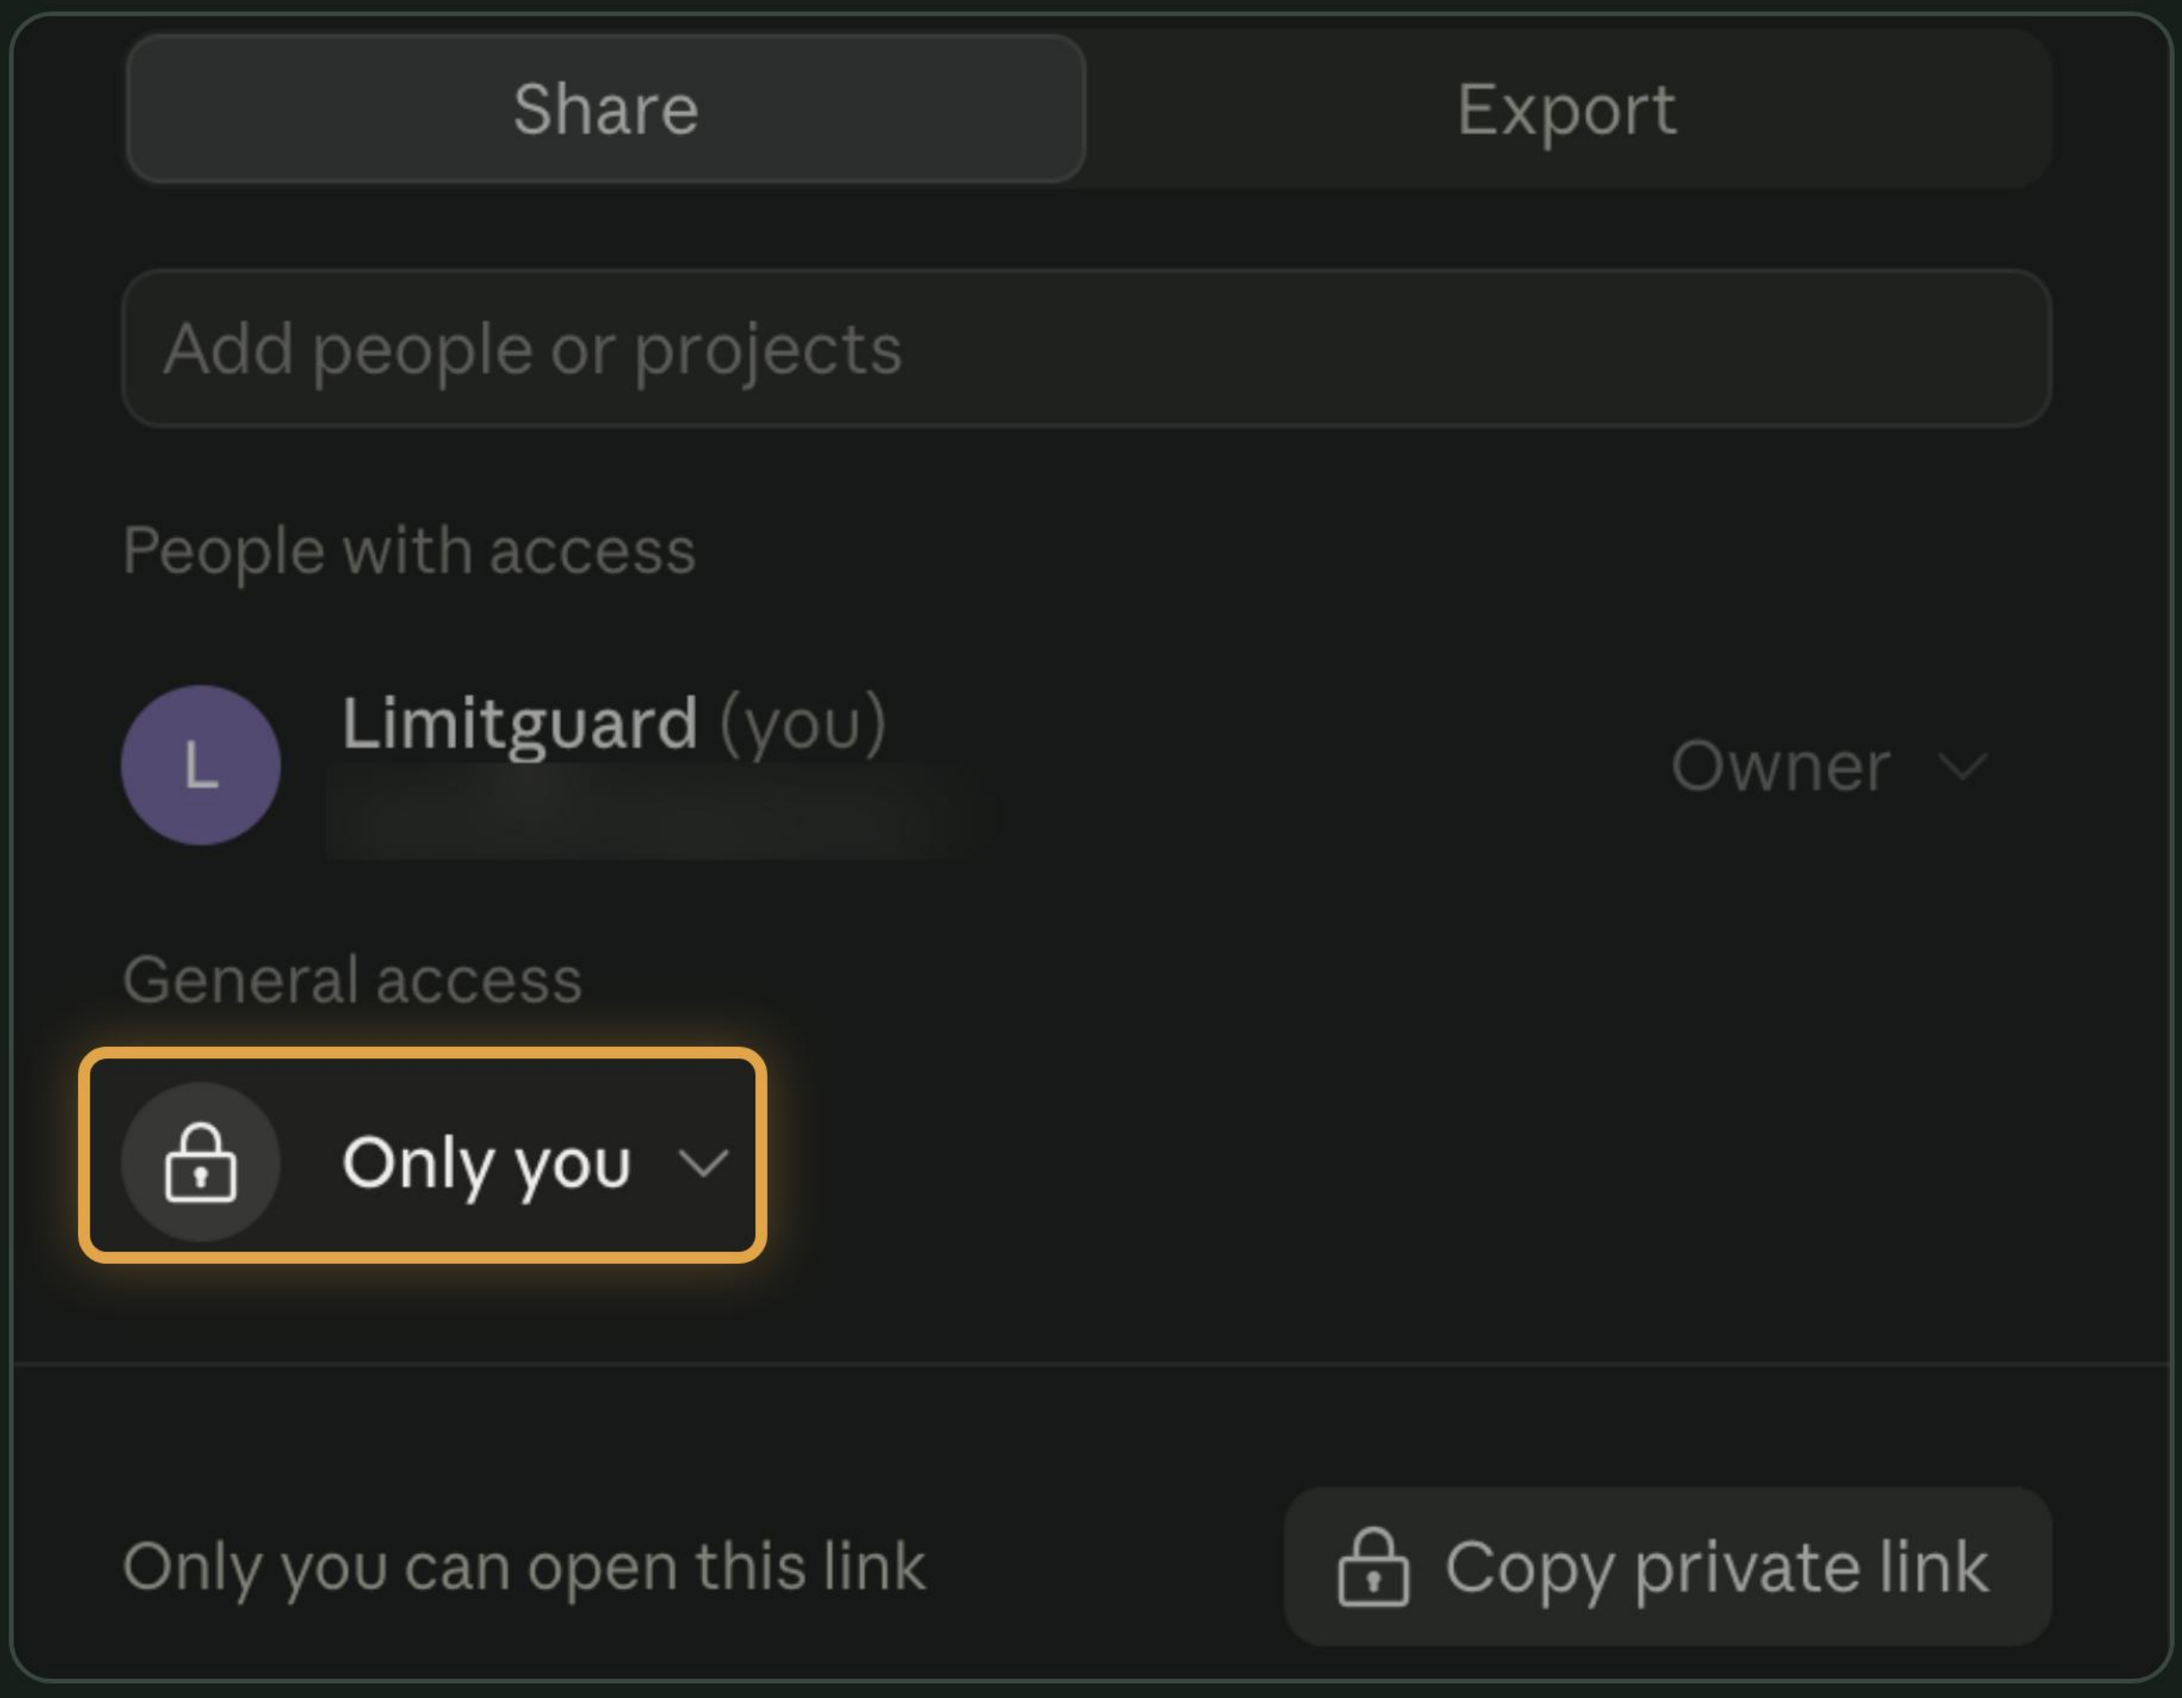

One change: "...as an artifact, so I can share it with my manager."

One page beside the chat, built from the price list in the project. Edit it, come back to it, share it.

SHARE

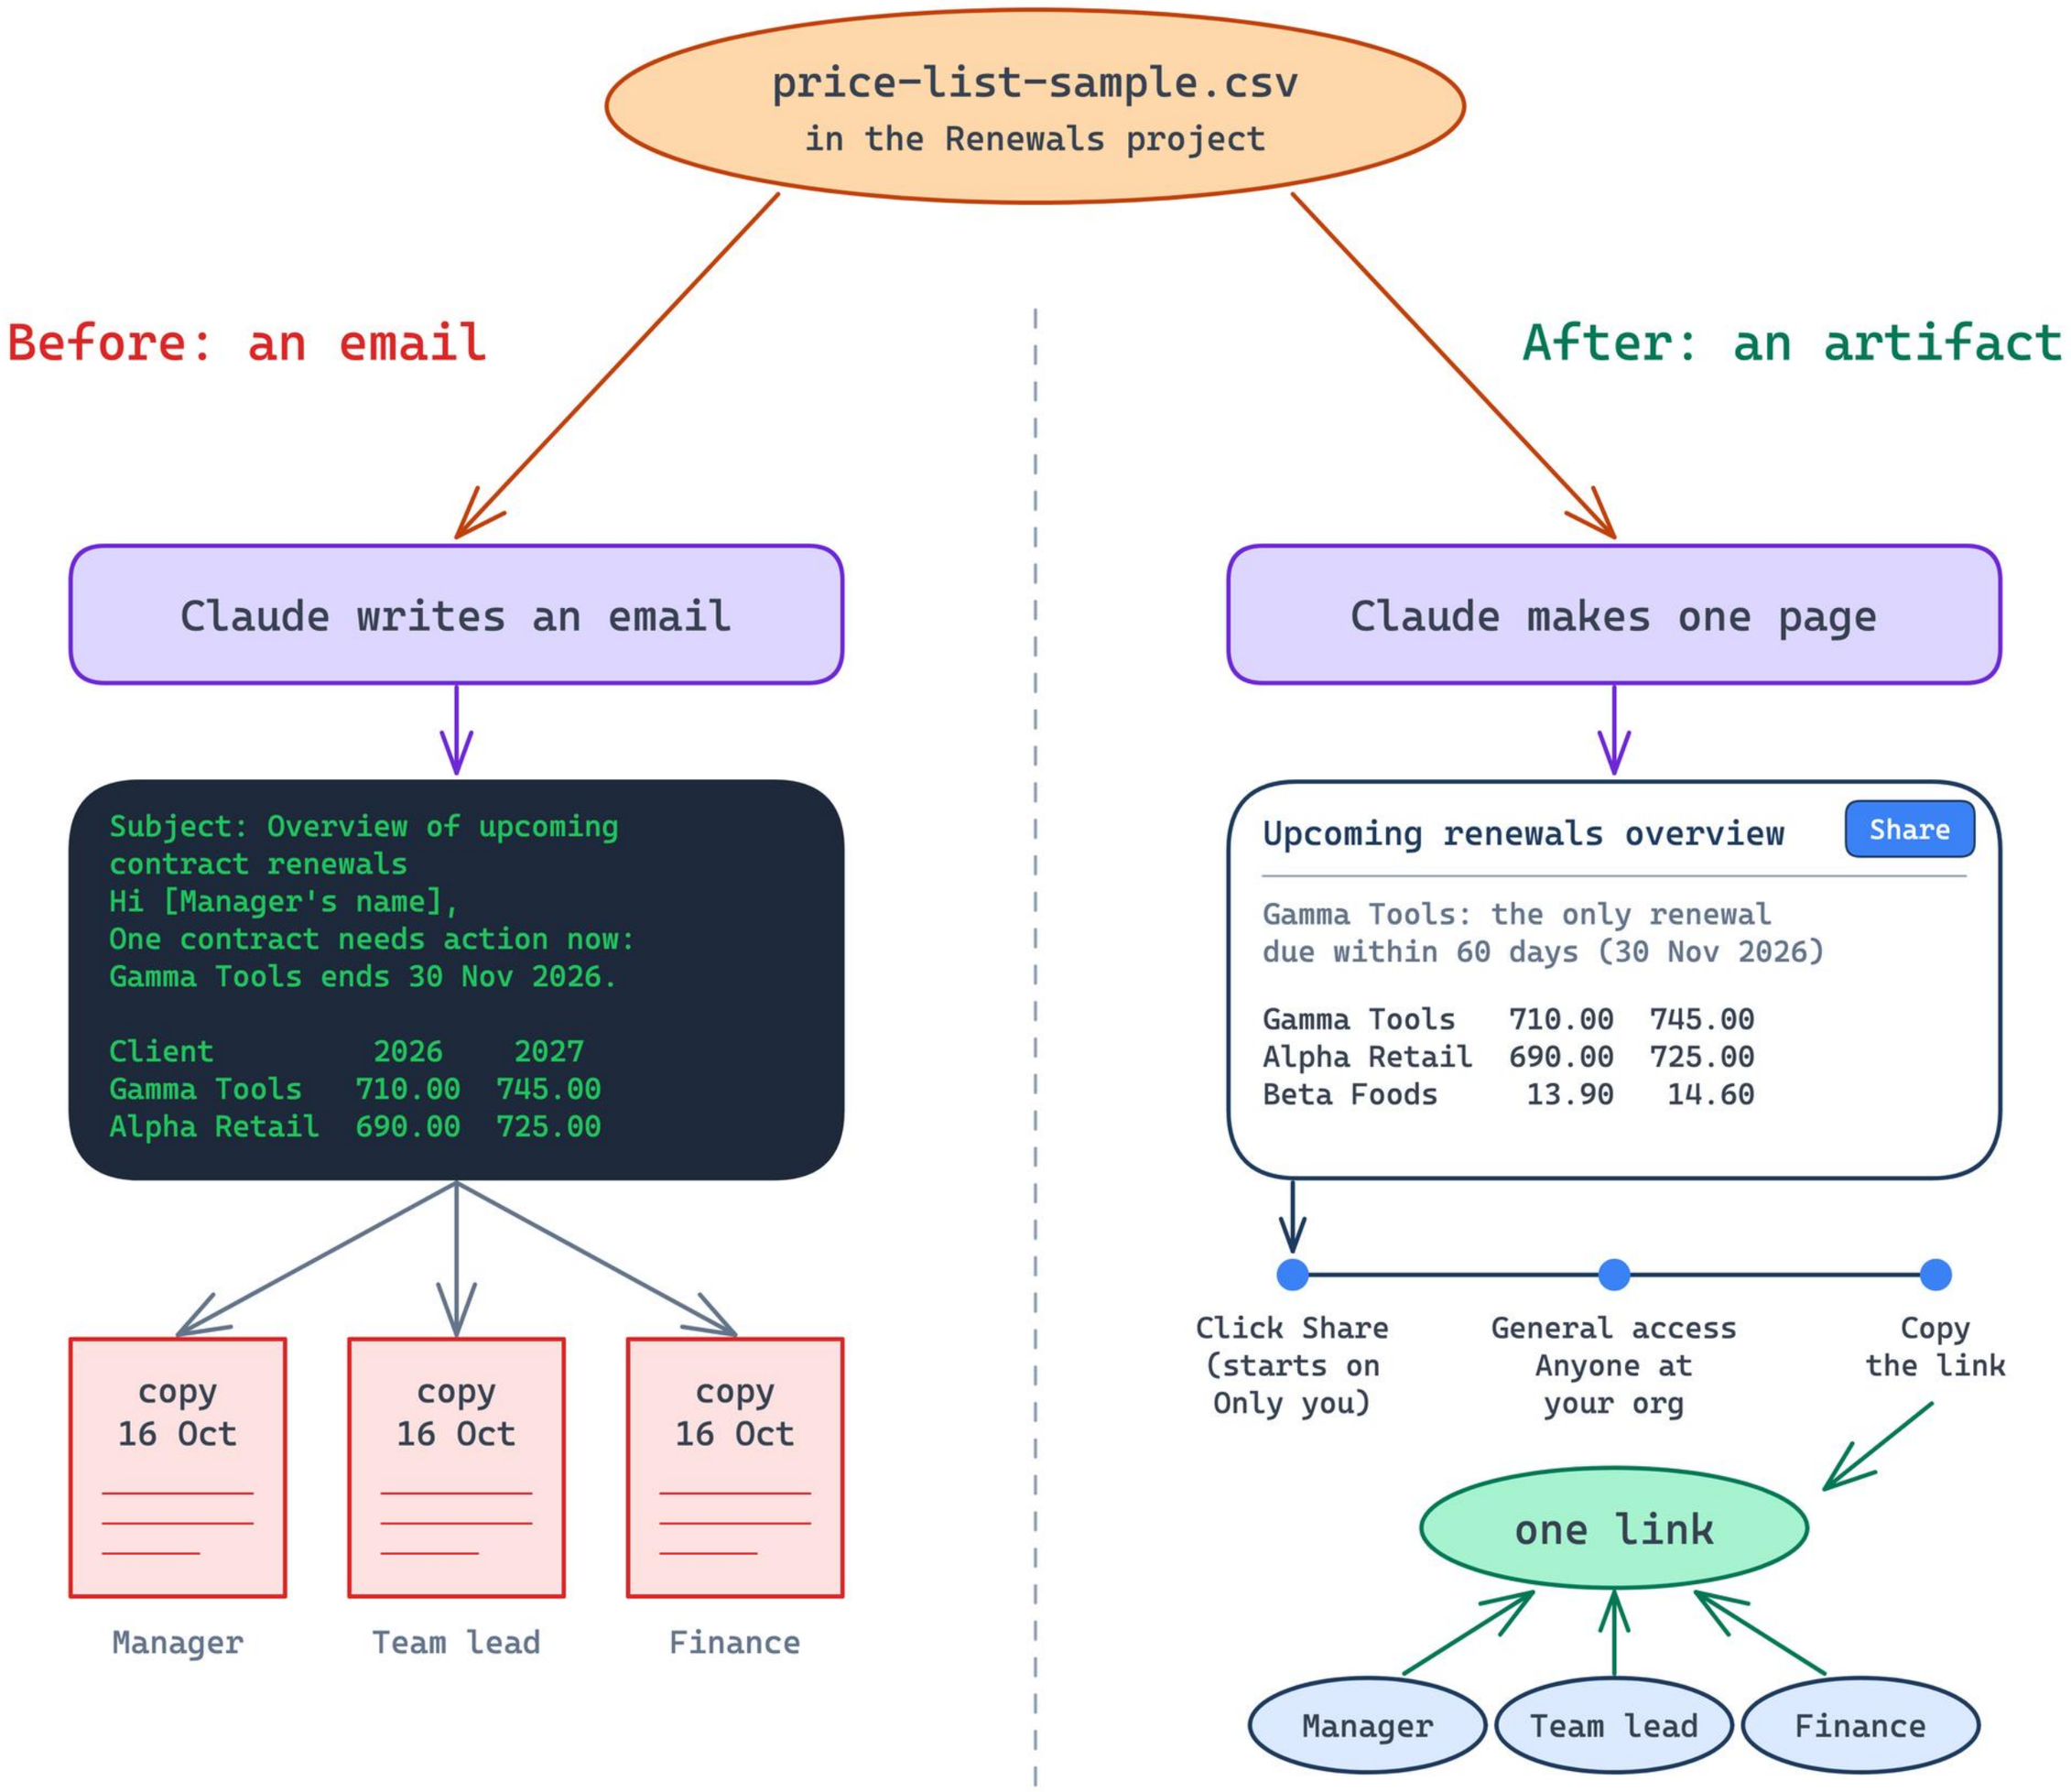

It starts private. You decide who opens it.

Click Share, choose who can open it under General access, then copy the link. Your plan decides the choices: on Team, your organization or people you invite.

Three readers: three copies, or one page?

Same job, same price list: the renewals overview from step 2

Frozen the day you hit Send.

A fix means a new email,
and three more copies.

Everyone opens the same page.

No table to paste,
no copy per reader.

An artifact starts private. Nobody sees it until you share it.
Everyone who opens it needs a Claude account.
